In 1820, *Florence Nightingale was born in northern Italy during the two-year trip by wealthy parents. When she was 16 years old, she is said to have heard God's message, "Serve God."

In 1842, a great famine broke out in England. Nightingale continued her service to people suffering from sickness and hunger in poor villages. So, she thought (1) it was God's message to help people who suffered from sickness and hunger.

However, in those days nurses were seen as servants in hospitals to care for sick people, and were considered a profession that did not require specialized knowledge. But her will was so strong that she overcame the opposition of her parents, and went on her way to nursing.

Nightingale devoted herself to training nurses. (2) Nurses are now recognized as *specialists with specialized *knowledge. And she came to be called "the mother of modern nursing education".

*Florence Nightingale: 看護師の育成に多大な貢献をした偉人

*knowledge: 知識
